June 10 75. JOHN LAWS, Clerk.

LITTLE BREECHES OUTDONE.

HOW A FORT JERVIS YOUNGSTER STRAYED OFF, STAYED FOR THREE DAYS AND WAS SCORCHED IN FROM A RATTLE-SNAKE'S DEN.

In Blooming Grove, Pike county, lives the family of a man named Chas. Dunning, consisting of himself, his wife and three children aged six, four and two and a half years. On Monday of last week the children went out to play in the fields. After being absent some time the two oldest returned to the house and said they had lost their little brother in the woods. Mrs. Dunning, thinking she could find the child without difficulty, went out into the woods and looked for some distance around calling him by name. Being unable to discover any trace of him she became alarmed and hastened back to the village and spread the news of the child's loss.

Blooming Grove is composed mainly of the dwellings of the employees of Jacob Klien-han's tannery, and when the news of the little boy's loss became general the greatest excitement prevailed. Business was stopped at the tannery, and forty men started to scour the wood in search of the child.

All the rest of the day they tramped through the woods without finding any trace of the missing little one, and all night pine torches flashed through the forest aisles, frightening from their perches myriads of night birds, which answered with their shrill cries the shouts of the men calling to the child. During the night a catamount was shot, but morning dawned upon an unsuccessful party of sad-hearted villagers. After a short rest the hunt was again commenced, and all Tuesday night was prosecuted diligently, but with no better result. The opinion now was general that the child had been killed and eaten by wild beasts, which still haunt the Pike county wilderness.

The search was continued, however, at the urgent appeal of the mother of the boy. Toward noon on Wednesday one of the party started on a journey in a direction which had not been investigated as yet. Passing about a hundred yards through a laurel swamp, two miles from the village, he came out in an open space about thirty feet square. The opening was walled in on every side by a thick growth of laurel, and was well filled with large rocks marked with crevices and large seams, resembling an abandoned quarry. The instant the man stepped into the place, he was startled by the sound of a rattlesnake, giving him warning to pause. Looking down he saw the snake coiled up, about four feet away, in readiness to spring at the first provocation. The backwoodsman had seen such a thing before, and, picking up a club, dispatched the snake at once. He was not prepared for the development that followed, however. Glancing about him he made the unpleasant discovery that he had intruded in a place preoccupied by a colony of rattlesnakes; in short, he was in a den of deadly reptiles. From crevices and creases on the rocks and on the ground he saw numbers of them lying in various positions, basking their slim proportions in the sunshine. The man made up his mind that the place had no particular charms for him, and was about to beat a hasty retreat, when he fell on a snake that was fixed to his horror.

On a low flat rock, not more than six feet from where the man stood, lay the apparently lifeless form of the little boy they had been looking for so long. Stretched by his side, not more than three inches away from him, was a huge rattlesnake, while near his feet two more lay coiled up, all evidently undisturbed by the presence of the child. While the man did not suppose for an instant that the boy was alive, he determined to rescue the body from so horrible a sepulcher, and with well directed blows from his club killed three snakes that held possession of the child. Every blow was responded to by the blood curdling din of rattles from the snakes that lay near the rock. While he was examining the ground between him and the child to see if any of the reptiles lay on that side he was startled to see the supposed dead infant rise with an effort to a sitting posture, stare wildly about with a crazed, haggard look, and then sink back upon the rock. The next instant the stout-hearted woodsman had sprung upon the rock, and seized the child, bore him away quickly from the lair of the denizens, and in a few minutes placed him in the arms of his distracted mother, amid the general rejoicing of the whole village. The child was unconscious, and lay lying in a critical condition, being delirious with fever brought on by the unparalleled hardship and privation he suffered in his three days' wandering alone in the forest before which the stout-hearted hunter would have quailed.

"Make you a coat sir?" said a suspicious tailor to a suspected customer. "Oh, yes sir, with the greatest pleasure! There, just stand in that position, please, and look right upon that notice while I take your measure."

ANDREW JOHNSTON.

NASHVILLE, August 1.—At a public meeting this evening, the following resolutions were adopted:

1st. That we learn, with sorrow, of the sad bereavement of the people of Tennessee in the loss of a guide, who has for so many years pointed out the right way to political safety, and whose services, at this time, appeared to us so important to the Republic.

2d. That we deeply sympathize with his aged and afflicted wife in her bereavement, and with his daughter and son and their families, in the loss they are called to mourn.

3d. That in view of the great labors and lessons taught by him to the generation of his countrymen, a committee of our friends of Middle Tennessee be appointed to select some suitable places and day for appropriately celebrating the obsequies of our departed countryman, and that the committee be authorized to select a person, who shall prepare an address embodying the lessons which Andrew Johnston has given to his countrymen, and that the following persons be appointed as such committee upon obsequies of Andrew Johnston.

The committee is comprised of over one hundred of the most prominent citizens of Middle Tennessee.

Every arrangement is made for the funeral to take place at Greenville, Tennessee, on Tuesday, but this may be changed, and the remains brought to this city for interment.

A special dispatch to the Nashville papers from Greenville, dated 7 o'clock says: Mr. Johnston died of paralysis and heart disease. He had been complaining somewhat of ill health during the past month, but felt no serious apprehension. Last Wednesday he took the morning train to visit his daughter, with whom Mr. Johnston had been sojourning for the past six weeks. He rode in a back from Carter's Depot to his residence, some miles distant, and was received in good spirits on his arrival, and sat heartily at dinner, and after a few minutes of general conversation, retired up stairs and conversed with his grand daughter, Miss Little Stover. While thus engaged his tongue refused utterance, and to great consternation he fell from his seat to the floor. Help was instantly summoned and almost as he was raised, he expressed indistinctly, however, that his right side was paralyzed. After being taken to bed, when the family spoke of sending for a physician, he forbade it, saying that he would soon recover. On this account, summoning of medical aid was deferred 24 hours, when Dr. Jobe was called from Elizabeth town, two miles distant. He instantly began treatment, aided by Dr. Cameron, and seemed at one time during the next day, to be succeeding. The patient conversed imperfectly in regard to domestic matters, and did not seem conscious of the approaching dissolution. But his case was beyond the skill of his physician, and at 7 o'clock last night he became unconscious. Mrs. Patterson and Andrew Johnson Jr. arrived an hour later, with two physicians from Greenville Drs. Bray and Taylor, but he did not recognize any of them, and after seven hours and a half of unconsciousness, he peacefully breathed his last, surrounded by his wife, children and all his grandchildren, except the son and daughter of ex-Senator Patterson.

His body will be brought here to-morrow morning, and will be buried with national honor on Tuesday.

Knoxville has requested the honor of burying the illustrious dead, but the family are unwilling that his remains should be removed from his home to any place, unless possibly to the capital of the State, which he so long and faithfully served.

Extensive preparations are accordingly being made by various civil and military organizations to attend the funeral here, where they will be joined by citizens of this and neighboring counties.

The St. Louis Globe Democrat has the following account of a queer suit: "An Iowa laborer has sued an old farmer on a rather queer contract. The man hired to the farmer on the condition that part of his wages would be paid in money, and that for the balance he should receive one of the old man's daughters in marriage. The labor was performed and the money was paid, but the girl was not forthcoming. This was not the fault of the old man, but of the daughter, who refused to be made the subject of bargain and sale. Whereupon the laborer sued the father upon the contract, but we are not informed whether the suit is for specific performance or for damages. If for damages we apprehend that the laborer has a good cause for action, though his damages must be small if proportioned to the value of an unwilling wife. The great suit of Jacob vs. Laban (1st Moses, 39.) does not afford a precedent, as it was compromised by the parties, and it seems that the legal talent of Iowa will be forced to wrestle with a new principle in jurisprudence. The case will probably be left to a jury whose verdict will largely depend upon the matrimonial experience of its competent parties."

ROMANCE IN KANSAS.

A CHEYENNE INDIAN ATTEMPTS TO ABDUCT A FARMER'S DAUGHTER.

One of the main tributaries of the Little Arkansas river is called Running Turkey Creek, at the mouth of which is Jim Geary's ranch, an old and somewhat notorious stopping place in the day when Government provisions were hauled from Fort Harker to the Indian Territory by means of bill and mule teams. Among the early settlers was a family from Ohio named Falconer, which consisted of Robert Falconer, his wife Sarah and their only daughter, Bessie. At this time, about seven years old, the young girl was engaged to a young farmer, and had nothing happened would have been married on last Friday evening. This time for the marriage arrived, so did the bridegroom and invited guest, but strange, no bride appeared. Her parents, supposing she was in her room, went to the door to warn her that the time for the performance of the ceremony had arrived, and that they found the room empty. It was early evening and not yet dark; they walked to the window to endeavor to discover the truth. Their horror may be imagined when they saw, rapidly disappearing through the timber on the creek bank, a man carrying in his arms the form of a young girl, which, in the dress, they immediately recognized as that of their daughter. In an instant the alarm was given, and the whole party well armed, started in pursuit. Within a few minutes they were within gunshot of the fugitive, but were unable to use their weapons in consequence of his shifting his body with the lightness of the bird.

The young lover was almost frantic, and in his frenzy appeared to have gained the fleetness of the antelope, overtaking the almost breathless abductor, he seized him, and after a brief struggle wrested the girl from him, at the same time discovering that the abductor was a Cheyenne Indian who had been around the neighborhood for a year or two. At the same time that the farmer regained his sweetheart the savage with an eagle like wiggle, escaped from his hold and started on a keen run down the creek. The pursuers, however, were too much for him, and one of their number brought him to the ground by means of a well-aimed bullet from a needle-gun. It was ascertained that the red man was only wounded in the thigh. He was then taken prisoner and lodged in a neighboring dugout, from which by some means he escaped during the night, carrying the needle-gun ball in his thigh, and has not since been heard of, although a diligent search has been made by the friends of the young lady, whose wedding has been indefinitely postponed in consequence of an attack of brain fever, the result of the fright she received.

THE WOMAN'S WORLD.

Although they may not be willing to acknowledge it, the happiness of the race depends to a great extent upon women. They regulate the domestic life; and upon it, more than upon the great events which fill the pages of history, depend individual peace and comfort. Probably few things have more to do with the happiness of the household than the presence or absence of that exquisite tact which renders the sharp corners and softens the asperities of different characters, enabling people differing most widely to live together in peace, cheered by mutual good offices. The possession of this quality is the especial characteristic, and its exercise one of the most delightful prerogatives of womanhood. We may be willing to lose all, to die if need be, for those we love, but if we do not, from day to day, abstain from the little unkind or thoughtless acts which interfere with their comfort, we shall utterly fail to make them happy, and their hearts will inevitably escape us. The heroic and magnificent acts of life are few. To many but one; to most, none comes in a lifetime. Therefore influences can only come through the right performance of the "trifles" which make the sum of human things.

AVOID GOSSIP.

We condemn gossip, scandal, twin sister, yet it is a fault easily committed. We begin by a gentle deprecatory reference to somebody's infirmity of temper, and we find ourselves specifying a particular time and scene, which straightway the one who hears tells again to some one else with additions, slight, perhaps, but material. Before we know it, we have stirred up a hornet's nest. This may be done without any more potent motive than a mere love of fun—and half the gossip in the social world is of the unthinking kind, indulged in merely from a spirit of drollery. Far worse is that other sort of talk which ends in slander and begins in malice, and which separates friends and sows the seeds of fears of intercourse with its sharp and jarring discords. The only way to avoid the evil is to refrain from making the affairs of our friend a staple article of conversation in the household. There are plenty of subjects at hand. Let us avoid personalities.

WHAT ARE WOMAN'S RIGHTS.

The following lines set forth, more beautifully than all the so-called advocates of "woman's rights" have been able to do, what exalted prerogatives nature has bestowed upon women:

The right to wake when others sleep;
The right to watch, the right to weep;
The right to comfort in distress;
The right to sooth, the right to bless;
The right to widow's heart to cheer;
The right to dry the orphan's tear;
The right to feed and clothe the poor,
The right to teach them to endure;
The right, when other friends have flown,
And left the sufferer all alone,
To kneel that dying couch beside,
And meekly whisper to him who died;
The right a happy home to make,
In any clime for Jesus' sake,
Rights such as these are all we crave;
Until our last—a peaceful grave.

VOLTAIRE ON MARRIAGE.

The great Voltaire said: "The more married men you have, the fewer crimes there will be. Marriage renders a man more virtuous and more wise. An unmarried man is but half of a perfect being, and it requires the other half to make things right, and it cannot be expected that in this imperfect state he can keep the straight path of rectitude any more than a boat without an oar, or a bird with but one wing, can keep a straight course. In nine cases out of ten where married men become drunkards or commit crimes against the peace of the community, the foundation of these acts were laid while in a single state, or where the wife is, as is sometimes the case, an unsuitable match. Marriage changes the current of a man's feelings, and gives him a centre for his thoughts his affections and his acts. Here is a home for the entire man, and the counsel, the affection, the example and the interest of his 'better half' keeps him from his erratic courses, and from falling into a thousand temptations to which he would otherwise be exposed. Therefore, the friend to marriage is the friend to society and to his country."

FLOWING FOR WHEAT.

This is done the better, and the more thoroughly, too, the greater will be the advantage in every respect. Deep plowing largely insures against winter killing, the escape of superabundant water being facilitated by the loosening of the soil. Do not turn under too deeply, however, manures for wheat.

THOUGHTS FOR SATURDAY NIGHT

It is but one step from companionship to slavery, when one associates with vice. Active natures are rarely melancholy. Activity and melancholy are incompatible. In life it is difficult to say who do you the most mischief—enemies with the worst intentions, or friends with the best.

Tail; feel; think; hope. A man is sure to dream enough before he dies, without making arrangements for the purpose. Whatever ruins the moral nature, whether it be danger or suffering, or the approach of death, banish belief in a moment.

The height of earthly promotion and glory lifts us up to what nearer heaven it is easier to step there from the lowly vale of humiliation and sorrow.

"Mary," said a preacher, addressing a colored convert, "is not the love of God wonderful?" She replied: "I do not think it is so wonderful, because it is just like him."

Grace is glory militant and glory is grace triumphant; grace is glory begun, glory is grace made perfect; grace is the first degree of glory, glory is the highest degree of grace.

Generosity during life is a very different thing from generosity in the hour of death; the one proceeds from liberality and benevolence, the other from pride and fear.

True science, which is the knowledge of facts, and true philosophy, which is the knowledge of principles, are always allied to true religion; which is the harmony of the soul with facts and principles.

No man's life is free from struggles and mortifications, not even the happiest; but every one may build up his own happiness by seeking mental pleasure, and thus make himself independent of outward fortune.

Human reason, after guessing and reasoning from seed to seed, yearns for a Lord and Master, not to crush it down but to take it up, weak, bewildered and weary, and fold it in that divine reason whence alone it borrows vigor and illumination.

It is a good and safe rule to sojourn in every place as if you meant to spend your life there, never omitting an opportunity of doing a kindness, or speaking a true word, or making a friend. Seeds thus sown by the wayside often bring forth abundant harvest.

THE WILMINGTON JOURNAL SAYS:

There is no accounting for anything this hot weather. We heard yesterday of a strange occurrence which took place at a plantation on Topsail Sound. A gentleman from this sound informs us that he has a hen that having gone through the process of laying the usual number of eggs, took it into her head to have a set and hatch them out. She proceeded to this duty with earnestness, and faithfully attended to it for the space of two weeks, when, tiring of the monotony, or overcome by the extreme heat, she abandoned her nest and left the eggs to spoil. Strange to say, however, such did not occur, for after the remaining week had expired, each particular egg produced a little chick, hatched entirely by the warmth of the atmosphere.

This, we are assured, is not an exaggerated story, and it is told exactly as it was told to us.

The Wilmington Journal says: We learn from a reliable source that Mr. John Westcott was drowned at Lockwood's Ferry on Wednesday last. Mr. Westcott, who is a pilot, and who formerly lived at Smithville, and who recently moved to Lockwood's Ferry where he followed his profession, rigged up his boat, a small sloop, to board a vessel off the inlet. He took on board with him a negro man, who generally assisted him in managing his craft. As the sloop was crossing the inlet it struck upon an old wreck and capsized, and immediately sunk. Mr. Westcott and the negro swam for shore, while the latter succeeded in reaching, but Mr. Westcott was drowned. The negro went to Smithville yesterday and made known the facts to the relatives of the deceased.

Mr. Westcott had been a pilot on the coast for years, and was conceded to be an excellent swimmer, and it is generally believed that some portion of the rigging of the sloop must have injured him which she capsized.

The deceased had a wife who resides in this city.

There was a full fair delivery at Greensboro on Tuesday night. The Patriot says that Lydia Crutts, being unwell, was allowed the privilege of the passage, upon which the bells open and she by means unknown procured a case knife which had been converted into a case little saw—with which she sawed the lock of the cell in which King and Durham were, who being freed themselves, did similar services for the balance of the prisoners. Nine escaped, two returning of their own accord.

Says the Greensboro Patriot: Mr. Harry Reed showed us a hen's egg yesterday which measures 7 1/2 inches in circumference one way and 4 inches the other, and weighs three and a quarter ounces. The hen is of medium size, and goes right along laying this sort every day.

THE RESULT.

We write in anticipation of our publication day. And as we write the Radicals are boastful of victory. The chances are still that the Democrats carry the Convention. One thing is certain. The Democratic vote has not fallen off. The radical vote has increased either by repeating or by the introduction of negro votes at doubtful points.

Timely notice was given that the Democratic party was fighting against Powers and Principalities, and against the powers of darkness, and against corruption in high places. If we did not take warning, the fault was our own.

THE FLOODS IN THE WEST.

Just upon the heels of one of the finest wheat crops ever raised in the West comes the most disastrous flood ever known in that region. Not the highest possibly since the settling of the country, but by far the most destructive. For since the last mighty floods, the wilderness of the west has grown up into thickly populated States. The narrow paths of the Indian have given place to the thickly interlacing rail roads. The streams once rolling in silent grandeur through forest or prairie are now spanned with numerous and costly bridges. The native flowers of the prairies have given way to mowing crops of grain, and the same brake has been supplanted by dense forests of corn. Wealth has sprung up where desolation reigned and a teeming population now fills the wastes once given up to solitude.

Over this region of peace, plenty and prosperity, the beam of destruction has swept at a time when the proceeds of the years toil were within grasp, when all the vicissitudes and uncertainties of the seasons seemed to be overcome and passed, and when the goal of safety seemed to have been reached; all is changed in a few brief days. Crops are washed away or ruined in the fields, bridges torn from their foundations and hurled down the rushing floods, rail roads submerged and embankments torn through or crumbling away under the action of the waters. Travel, traffic, intercourse, all suspended, and the busy hive of this teeming population with all the substantial evidences of their labors and their enterprise involved in undistinguishable wreck.

No doubt, recuperation will be rapid. A people who accomplished so much in so few years will neither be depressed nor crippled. They will build on the ruins more substantially than before. But it cannot be denied that there will be much present distress. An additional weight is laid upon the burden of a debt which the destroyed crop was looked upon to relieve. A longer postponement of a return of prosperity and a prolongation of the period of financial distress is inevitable.

And the effect upon the general markets will be felt everywhere. The loss of so large a portion of the wheat crop, though not producing anything like scarcity, will necessarily stimulate prices. Wheat must go up very considerably. We take no pleasure in recording the misfortunes of our neighbors, but there is this comfort to us, so long steeped in poverty, and with all the avenues to release closed against us, that at length we have been blessed with good crops, safely housed, and now ready for market. Proper foresight and patience will secure our farmers some of the fruits of their toil and enable them to profit by what has been a calamity to one section of our country.

THE CURRENCY QUESTION.

This has been sprung prematurely as the great issue of the Presidential campaign. We do not think it wise for the South to commit itself to any pledges in the present stage of the question, since there are many more of quite as much importance to us involved in the campaign.

Yet there is no doubt that our real interests are as deeply involved. The almost absolute disappearance of a circulating medium from among us has become a wide spread grievance affecting every class and industry. It is one of the direct fruits of the policy of the party now in power. That party will not suffer the paper money of the country to become good, and until the discrimination between gold and greenbacks in the payment of duties and the interest on bonds, the paper money of the country will be bad. All that is wanted is that the currency of the country have this equality of value as money. This would destroy the present inequality, and this would unlock the boards that are now idle, and give the relief so much wanted by South and West.

North Carolina ships annually 15,000 barrels of dried blackberries.

PERSON.
John W. Cunningham is elected by 80 majority.

THE PROBABLE RESULTS.

The News says: At this hour, Saturday 4 p. m., we are utterly unable to tell how the State has gone upon the Convention question. Information from almost every portion of the State make it extremely doubtful as to which side will have a majority in the Convention, the Rads claiming it quite confidently. The latest information received in the News office to this hour, and we have heard from every available portion of the State, gives the Republicans about 51 members certain, the Democrats 56, with 10 doubtful. The doubtful counties consist of Ashe, Cherokee, Dare, Haywood, Madison, Montgomery, Randolph, Surry, Wilkes and Yancey.

The chances are in favor of a Republican majority, simply from the fact that the tide has set in that direction from the sections of the State heard from, but we still hope that later news may cause victory to perch upon the Democratic banner. Our information to-day gives the Democrats Chatham, Sampson and Gates in addition to what we have claimed, and the election of Withers, Con., in Caswell, and Cary, negro, and gives the Radicals Hertford, Bertie, Pasquotank, Washington, Perquimans, Tyrrell, Camden, Chowan, Moore and Cumberland, (this being Republican information.) It may be impossible to decide the result for a day or two yet.

LATER.

GOOD NEWS FROM ROBESON!
Wilmington, Aug. 7.—The official vote of Robeson county shows that the Democrats carry that county, a gain of two.

This gain makes the Democratic success much more probable.

WHAT OTHERS DO.

The question of Convention was carried in Alabama by 20,000 majority. They have had the military heel on them, boots were pulled. So had North Carolina, but it forgets its recent contacts through the sup of Office.

Of the members of the North Carolina Constitution Convention of 1875, says the Philadelphia Times, twenty-five were members of the Secession Convention of 1861, which voted the old North State out of the Union, besides the ex-Confederate General of the State. Just here the time happens to be a little ahead of the Times. The North Carolina Constitutional Convention of 1875 will not meet until the sixth of next month, nor were the delegates elected until yesterday. The error is entirely excusable, however, since the Times is perfectly correct in continuing the paragraph as follows: "It is difficult, if not impossible, to find men in the South intellectually and morally qualified to serve in any legislative capacity who were not identified with secession and the Confederacy. Carpet-bag rule is over down there." Had this fact been recognized years ago millions would have been saved to the treasuries of the Southern States and reconstruction and reconciliation would have been the work of but a few months.—Wil. Journal.

Who has it, the Convention? It is mixed.

The Raleigh News says: It is thought in Tennessee that the Governor will appoint Gen. William B. Bate to the post of the late Andrew Johnson is the reason. Gen. Bate was a close companion of Mr. Johnson; the latter wishing only by a very small vote. He was a Confederate officer, but that he was fully reconciled to the situation is evident from the letter which he wrote to a recent meeting of Southern soldiers: "We have not at any time lost sight of the fact that this is our country, and the only one in which we have a special interest; that its glory is our glory, its shame our shame; and that it is both patriotic and manly for us to rise with our late adversaries in a generous way, in elevating, strengthening and ennobling it." Among others mentioned for the vacant seat in the Senate are ex-Govs. Isham G. Harris and John C. Brown. It is said that Gov. Porter has strongly intimated that the claims of those who sought the appointment while the late Senator's body remained unburied will be entirely ignored by him.

AN INFERENCE.

A negro equipped a day or two who was elected in this county. He was informed 'Graham and Turner.' 'U m m,' groaned the darkie. 'Whipping post again.'

Marshal McMahon, President of the French Republic, is said to have telegraphed to his wife in Paris that the battle fields of Sebastopol, Italy, and Sedan were nothing in their horrors in comparison with the scene of desolation and misery which he witnessed at the inundated city of Toulouse. By drowning alone 4,000 lives have been lost.

They say Theodore L. Cayler of Brooklyn, who is residing at Dr. Strong's, was talking with a Saratoga farmer the other day.

'Hasn't it been too dry for crops, especially potatoes, prairie here, and wouldn't it be a good idea to irrigate between the rows?' asked the Brooklyn divine.

'The Lord knows his biz,' replied old enough 'Just let the Lord above, and crops 'll be all right.'

'Well, my friend, I don't know any place where the Lord is let more severely alone than he is around Saratoga.'

Gen. Longstreet kept work on an account of his part in the battle of Gettysburg. He believes that history will do him injustice if he does not defend himself.

The negro Postmaster at Clayton, Ala.; R. C. Stewart, has been taken to Montgomery on a charge of embezzling money-order funds, and, failing to give bonds, is now seen through a gridiron window.

John McCullough, the actor, wrote from Ems, Prussia, to a friend in St. Louis as follows: 'Great celebration among American visitors here. Dinner-Speeches-Flags-Music. W. J. Florence in the chair. Big Thing. Big Time. Big Drink.'

The gifted poet must have been in a happy mood when he wrote the following beautiful sentiment: 'Hope is the leading star of youth; memory, the staff of old age.'

Cincinnati, August 5.—A dispatch from Tere Haute says that the Wabash river is steadily falling, and that the railroads began transferring passengers and mails can get through to-morrow at Seymour. The Ohio and Mississippi bridge is gone and several wash-outs on that road besides. This city appeared to be the center of the storm, spreading about one hundred miles in each direction. The total damage to railroads, crops and private property in this Congressional district, is estimated at ten millions dollars.

The water is invading cellars on Broadway, Sycamore, Maine, Walnut and Union streets, and up as far as Second.

Washington, August 5.—The Mississippi river is eight inches above danger line at Helena, and has risen one inch at Memphis, two inches at Vicksburg and nine inches at Cairo, and has risen seven inches at St. Louis.

A special dispatch from Indianapolis says a cyclone passed through Harveysburg, Fountain county, Indiana, last Sunday night, tearing houses to pieces, uprooting trees, and sweeping things generally before it. Five women were killed.

A special dispatch from Cambridge City, Indiana, says that two hundred and fifty feet of the track of the Whitewater Valley railroad was washed out and the bridge carried away during the storm.

Charleston, S. C. August 5th.—Ex-Treasurer Parker, against whom a verdict of seventy-five thousand dollars was recently rendered in a suit growing out of his official frauds and embezzlement, and who was in prison awaiting criminal prosecution for similar offenses, escaped from Columbia jail at a late hour last night, no clue to his whereabouts, but every effort is making to recapture him.

Franklin, Pa. August 7.—An explosion at the Bridgeburg arsenal this morning killed one boy and seriously injured twenty others, some fatally. The explosion was caused by breaking up condemned metallic ammunition.

Washington, Aug. 7.—Detectives have brought Thos. W. Brown, known as Peggy Brown, here from Saratoga, charged with complicity in the $47,000 theft from the Treasury. Benjamin B. Halleck, clerk in the Treasury cash-room, was on leave of absence, he has been arrested in New York by Detectives McDermott and McElfresh on the same charge. Wm H Ottman, restaurant keeper in this city, has also been arrested. The theory is that Halleck took the money, some of which he left with Ottman; and that Brown went to Saratoga to work some off. Meanwhile Halleck was making arrangements for his jewelry, clothes, harness and other paraphernalia of fast life in New York.

Springfield, Mass. Aug. 7.—A large mass of soft rock has fallen in the Hoosac Tunnel. Other places falling prevent the approach of workmen to ascertain the extent of the damage.

Ottawa, August 7.—A dispatch from Guitinneau says three children, while picking berries in the bushes, were attacked and killed by a bear. Only the feet and arms of one of the children can be found.

than expected. She has sent Benton Weathers as one of her delegates, and North Carolina presents far brighter minor characters than this gentleman.

The vote in Orange is larger than last year. It will not do to say that the Democratic party is weaker than it was, or disorganized. It will survive many shocks of internal trouble. Radicalism has no foothold here.

Capt. James J. Waddell.

This gentleman so widely famed as the gallant captain of the Confederate cruiser Shenandoah, is at present on a visit to his old home. He has been appointed to the command of the steamship city of San Francisco, one of the Pacific mail steamers just launched, and one of the finest vessels afloat. She will ply between Sydney, New South Wales and San Francisco.

Capt. Waddell will carry with him the admiration and the good wishes of thousands.

Union County.

Our old friend C. M. T. McCauley gives us the vote of this gallant little county which gives a Democratic majority of 201. If all counties had done as well there would be no occasion for the present doubt.

The following is an extract from his letter:

You will perceive that the county goes for Convention and the Democratic nominee by 251 majority in despite of the enormous influx of negro voters just in time to gain a residence. In vote. At one precinct in Sandy Ridge Township more than 50 rail road negroes voted at Monroe more than 100 new comers (negroes) from Wilmington, Kinston, Wake Wayne and the negroes around about voted in mass for the Radical candidate.

P. S. Amos and Robinson have gone Conservative by respectable majority. Norment had defeated.

It is announced that Miss Jennie Patterson has gone to the West. Her debut was made as "Grace Harkaway" which character she sustained admirably. May God bless and prosper the little woman.

Miss Patterson is well and most favorably known in this city, where she has given several readings, and where she was met with an extraordinary welcome from our best citizens and no little interest was felt in the future of those who have had the pleasure of hearing her. It appears that she has made arrangements with Mr. T. Cooper DeLeon, manager of the Mobile Theatre and it is probable that she will soon make extensive tours throughout the country. We hope our citizens may have the opportunity of seeing Miss Patterson in the new profession which she entered as a reader, something like a novel, will we argue, be only increased by her excellence as an actress. In the dramatic profession she will surely occupy a foremost position. —W. Journal.

Fatal Affray at Prospect Hill.

On the day of election a negro named McMillen was talking with a woman under a tree near F. L. Warren's barn, and another negro named Burnett, came up and commenced dancing also. McMillen told him not to dance there, and make a fool of the lady he was dancing with. Burnett took offense at what was said and while McMillen was looking off in another direction drew a knife and stabbed him in the heart. Killing him instantly. Burnett was arrested and carried to Yanceyville, where he was lodged in jail.

Meeting of the Tusculum Bar and officers of the County.

At a meeting of the members of the Bar and officers of the Tusculum County, at the Court House, on the 27th day of July, 1875, in respect to the memory of R. C. PARISH, late Clerk of the Circuit Court, the following proceedings were had:

On motion of Hon. J. M. Martin, Hon. N. H. Browne was called to the Chair, and F. B. Hemphill was requested to act as Secretary.

On motion of Gen. S. A. M. Wood, the following Committee were appointed to draft resolutions expressive of the sense of the meeting:—S. A. M. Wood, H. M. Southerly, E. A. Powell, J. M. Martin, J. M. VanHousen, E. M. Burton and Sam T. Palmer.

The Committee appointed by the Chair, made the following report:

RICHARD C. PARISH, Clerk of the Circuit Court of Tusculum County, died at his residence, in this city, on the 21st inst. He was well known to all of us, the business of our lives making an association with him frequent and confidential. This intimate knowledge produced, day after day, an increased regard for his fidelity as an officer, and his high honor and integrity as a man.

He was modest and retiring, yet firm in the discharge of all his duties.

The leading object of his life was to know what was right, and when the right was made manifest to his judgment, he every day endeavored to possess it. Whether honor and cheer his memory, and adopt the following resolutions:

Resolved 1st, That in the death of RICHARD C. PARISH, our community has lost an esteemed member, our county and industries and faithful officer, and the Bar a friend and as sociate, worthy our highest confidence and personal regard.

Resolved 2d, That we tender to his family our sincere condolence and sympathy, in their severe affliction.

Resolved 3d, That in honor of his faithful services and high character, these resolutions be presented to the County and Circuit Courts; and the Presiding Judge be requested to order that they be spread upon the Minutes thereof.

Resolved 4th, That newspapers of this city be requested to publish the proceedings of this meeting, and that a copy of these Resolutions be communicated to the widow of the deceased by the Secretary.

Messrs Wood, VanHousen, Martin, Powell, Clements, Hemphill and Browne, made remarks expressive of their high esteem and qualities of the deceased, after which the meeting adjourned.

HALL OF RISING VIRTUE LODGE,

No. 4, A. F. & A. M. Masons,

July 21, 1875.

At a called meeting of Rising Virtue Lodge, No. 4, A. F. & A. Masons, held this day, at 4 o'clock, P. M. for the purpose of attending the funeral of our deceased Bro. R. C. PARISH, the following preamble and resolutions were introduced and adopted by the Lodge:

Whereas, The Supreme Architect of the Universe, in his Providence, has summoned from this lower temple, to that temple above, our worthy and esteemed Brother, RICHARD C. PARISH; and whereas, we feel it a duty we owe our departed friend and Brother, to bear our testimony to the virtues which characterized his life, in all the relations he sustained to society, his fellow men and the Masonic Fraternity.—Therefore,

Resolved, That in this dispensation of Providence, Rising Virtue Lodge, No. 4, has been deprived of one of its most exemplary and beloved members, an active friend and worthy Brother, who was ever ready with heart and hand to advance the interests of "The Mystic Order" in labor and charity; and the country, one who was a good citizen and a faithful soldier.

Resolved, That we sincerely sympathize with the respected widow and children of our departed Brother, in their bereavement, and tender them the gentle solace of our most heartfelt commiseration for their sad loss.

Resolved, That we will proceed, in a body, to the late residence of our deceased Brother, for the purpose of accompanying his corpse to the place of interment, and there to deposit his remains with Masonic honors.

Resolved, That we wear the accustomed badge of mourning for the space of thirty days.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the widow and family of the deceased—that they be spread upon the minutes of this Lodge—and that the papers of the city be requested to publish the same.

WHEN TO CEASE WORKING COTTON.

When to stop working cotton is a question with many farmers. David Dickson perhaps the highest authority upon cotton culture, says 15th or 20th of August.

WHEN TO LAY BY CORN.

This depends upon how it is proposed to work it. If turning plows are used the 15th or 20th of June is as late as it will pay to plow corn, but if the sowing is run lightly over the rows as late as the 5th, 10th, or even 15th of July. It will often add 20 or 25 per cent to the yield.

TURNIPS.

It is time now to prepare to sow turnips.
The labor of cultivation is small, and the preparation of land and sowing seed, comes at a leisure season of the year, and but few crops pay better. A few acres will winter a flock of sheep, and what is better in eating them off the sheep will leave the ground improved at least one hundred per cent. Ashes is the cheapest and best manure within the reach of farmers for turnips. Indeed potash in some form is an indispensable ingredient in raising a good root crop.

ASHES AS A FERTILIZER.

Our planters ought to be careful to save all the ashes possible and apply to their lands. Most of our lands are wanting in potash and this is one of the best means of supplying them. About many of the large farm-houses, large heaps of leached ashes are seen, lying near where the good house-wife drops her lye for soap making.
These ashes, as well as all the leached ashes that can be obtained by a little trouble, would add greatly to the yield of land. There is nothing more available on most of our lands than the ashes which accumulate about every household, and which are usually thrown away. Save and apply your ashes.

CORN FODDER.

We desire again to call the attention of farmers to the importance of providing providing enough for stock during the approaching winter and spring and to save the enormous expense of purchasing Northern
hay. This can be easily done even now.
The busy season is over and all can find time to prepare and store or two of head for corn fodder. We may even sow it in land from which we have just taken a wheat or oat crop. Let it be well plowed and thoroughly manured, and corn planted at the rate of two or three bushels per acre. One plowing will be enough for it, and at a reasonable calculation we may expect five tons of good fodder hay, which at the price which has been paid the past season for Northern hay, would be worth at least one hundred and fifty dollars. Surely all can find time to devote at least a few acres to so remunerative a crop.

THE VEGETABLE GARDEN.

Clear up the remains of crops that have been gathered, and fill out the space with late crops, such as cabbage, spinach or turnips. Give the weeds no opportunity to take possession of the land where crops have matured, since, as they seed, they will give you much trouble for years to come. Carry all litter and rubbish to the compost heap, and do not leave it to obstruct and disfigure the garden.
Beans, for late use or pickling, may still be planted, but the ground should be rich-ened with manure. The first crop of celery will begin to need everything up. Take care that the earth does not get into the hearts of the plants.

SOWING RYE.—It is preferred by some
to sow this grain during this, others delaying till the beginning or end of next month.
This crop is becoming a much greater favorite in this State than formerly, especially in localities convenient for sending the straw to market. On our own farm it generally averages better than wheat.
The machines now made for threshing without breaking the straw, saves much labor in its management.

Rye prefers a loam with considerable sand in its texture, and as with wheat extreme in the preparation of land and seed will give extra returns at harvest. Ten good loads of barn-yard manure; 300 lbs.
of a reliable superphosphate, or 200 lbs.
of bone dust and 50 lbs. Peruvian guano, and one bushel of salt, will on most lands prove profitable applications. Five pecks of seed to the acre is enough, and it is preferable to put it in with the drill. If it grows too rank, either in the fall or spring, it can be grazed by either sheep or calves without injuring it.

As a forage crop for early cutting, rye is very valuable, and is coming very largely into use. With dairy farmers it is now almost indispensable as a provision for early green food.

GAPES IN CHICKENS.

From thirty-five years' experience, I have come to the conclusion that gapes in chickens are produced by eggs deposited on the ground where dirty water or mud is thrown out and lies some time without drying. The chickens eat it, and some of it lodges on the root of the tongue, and hatches and goes down into the windpipe, producing red worms, which grow until they kill the chickens. My remedy is to get a head of blue grass (best when young) take off the seed, turn the end down, and twist to make it lie close together; hold the chickens feet between the knees; take the bill and tongue in one hand, put the blue grass down as low as you can, without pressing it, with the other hand giving it a twist and withdraw it quickly; then let them sniffle. When the blue grass is older it requires more care. Sometimes blowing in a chicken's mouth saves its life. I generally can save them when they are too weak to travel around. Feeding young chickens with corn, as large as they can swallow, is very good.—Cor country gentlemen.

PROSPECTUS FOR 1875.
EIGHTH YEAR.

THE ALDINE,

THE ART JOURNAL OF AMERICA,
Issued Monthly.

A Magnificent Conception, wonderfully carried out.

The necessity of a popular medium for the representation of the production of our great artists, has always been recognized, and many attempts have been made to meet the want. The direct-style picture which so invariably followed each attempt in this country to establish an art journal, did not prove the indifference of the people of America to the claims of high art. So soon as a proper appreciation of the want and an ability to meet it were shown, the public at once rallied with enthusiasm to its support, and the result was a great article and commercial triumph.

THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light, and graceful literature, and a collection of pictures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of The Aldine is its most appreciated after it is brought up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals of a similar class, The Al-dine is a unique and original conception—absolutely and unconditionally without competition in price or character. The possession of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shape or number of volumes for less than the cost; and then, there is the Chromo, besides!

The national feature of THE ALDINE must be taken in no narrow sense. True art is cosmopolitan. While THE ALDINE is a strictly American institution, it does not confine itself entirely to the reproduction of native art. Its mission is to cultivate a broad and appreciative art taste, one that will discriminate not only on grounds of intrinsic merit. Thus, while placing before the patrons of The Aldine, as a leading characteristic, the productions of the most noted American artists, attention will always be given to specimens from foreign masters, giving a discerning eye the pleasure and instruction obtainable from home or foreign sources.

The article illustration of American scenery, original with The Aldine, is a prominent feature and its magnificent plates are of a size more appropriate to the satisfactory treatment of details than can be afforded by any inferior paper. The judicious interposition of landscape, marine, figure and animal subjects, sustain an unbroken interest, impossible where the scope of the work confines the artist too closely to a single style of subject. The literature of The Aldine is light and graceful accompaniment, worthy of the artistic features, with only such technical disquisitions as do not interfere with the popular interest of the work.

PREMIUM FOR 1875.

Every subscriber for 1875 will receive a beautiful portrait, in all colors, of the same noble dog whose picture in a former issue attracted so much attention.

"MAN'S UNSELFISH FRIEND."

Will be welcome in every home. Everybody loves a dog, and the portrait is calculated to true the life, that it seems the veritable presence of the animal itself. The Rev. T. De Witt Talmage tells that his own Newfoundland dog (the times in Brooklyn) barks at it! Although so natural no one who sees this portrait in chromo will have the slightest fear of being bitten.
To hold the chromo, every advance subscriber
THE ALDINE for 1875 is constituted a member, and entitled to the privilege of purchasing
THE ALDINE ART UNION.

The Union owns the originals of all The Aldine pictures, which, with other paintings and engravings, are to be distributed among the members.
To every series of 5,000 subscribers, two different pieces, valued at over $2,500 are distributed as soon as the series is full and the awards of each series made, and to be published in the next succeeding issue of THE ALDINE. This feature only applies to subscribers who pay for one year in advance. Full particulars in circular sent on application enclosing a stamp.
